

Seguin Media Group, Ltd, licensee of KWED-AM, Seguin, TX. opposes the FCC's NPRM requiring stations to record their programming. As a small market broadcaster, the expense of procuring equipment and recording media costing thousands of dollars would cause us great financial difficulty and be a waste of time as we do not engage in any type of indecent programming. Historically it has been very evident that a motivated public has no problem bringing complaints to the Commission's attention. The Commission has levied fines when necessary. If program recording is the Commission's goal, then require only those stations that have been fined to record their programming for three months after a fine has been levied to be sure they have ceased the conduct that required Commission action. It would be unfair to penalize the vast majority of broadcasters whose programming is acceptable and who work hard to serve their communities because of the actions of a few.